

GLOOM OVER MARKET

Discouraged Speculators Join
Old Bear Party.

WHOLE WEEK UNEVENTFUL

Cash Reserves of Bank of England
Increase—German and French
Bank Conditions Improved—Uncertainty as to the Tendency of the Money Market a Hurful Factor.

New York, April 14.—So far as the stock market proper was strictly concerned last week, it was characterized by extreme professionalism, diminishing activity, and, as must be admitted, a general tendency toward lower prices. A certain degree of reaction in the market was unquestionably invited by the rapid advance in quotations for the leading stocks since the violent fall only three weeks ago. Speculative traders last week who were impressed by the decided improvement in the money market, and who were inclined, therefore, to buy stocks, were naturally more or less disappointed over the failure of the market to hold its rise, and rather commonly disposed, after fighting the declining movement for one or two days, to throw over their recent acquisitions and to join with the old-time bear party, who were once more vigorously resuming their attack. Right at the close of the week, therefore, a more pessimistic sentiment was undoubtedly present in Wall Street, as distinguished from the general financial district, than was the case a week ago; and yet all this was due, simply as stated, to the fact that momentarily the stock market had turned weak.

Short Interest Is Increased.

It goes without saying, of course, that the short interest in the market was materially increased during the week, and it would surprise nobody if this interest was forced to cover its commitments at any time in a rather hurried fashion. If the Bank of England's reduction of its discount rate from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent. excepted, there were hardly any occurrences last week of real financial importance. The action of the directors of the Bank of England was a foregone conclusion. There were those who had hoped that the authorities of the Bank of England might see their way clear to make even a greater reduction in the discount rate of their institution than was actually ordered, but the statement of the condition of the bank published last week indicated that those in control of the bank could not move so rapidly at the present time as they would probably like to do toward the much-desired end of making money easy in the British capital. The cash reserves of the Bank of England, although they have increased a good deal recently, are still relatively low for the time of the year, being lower, indeed, than they have been at any corresponding period, with four exceptions, since the year 1882. The hope is strongly entertained that the directors will replenish its reserve more speedily than it has done in the past, since there is no longer any immediate danger of gold exports from England to this side, and the bank is still a long way from other European countries, as well as a bulwark from South Africa.

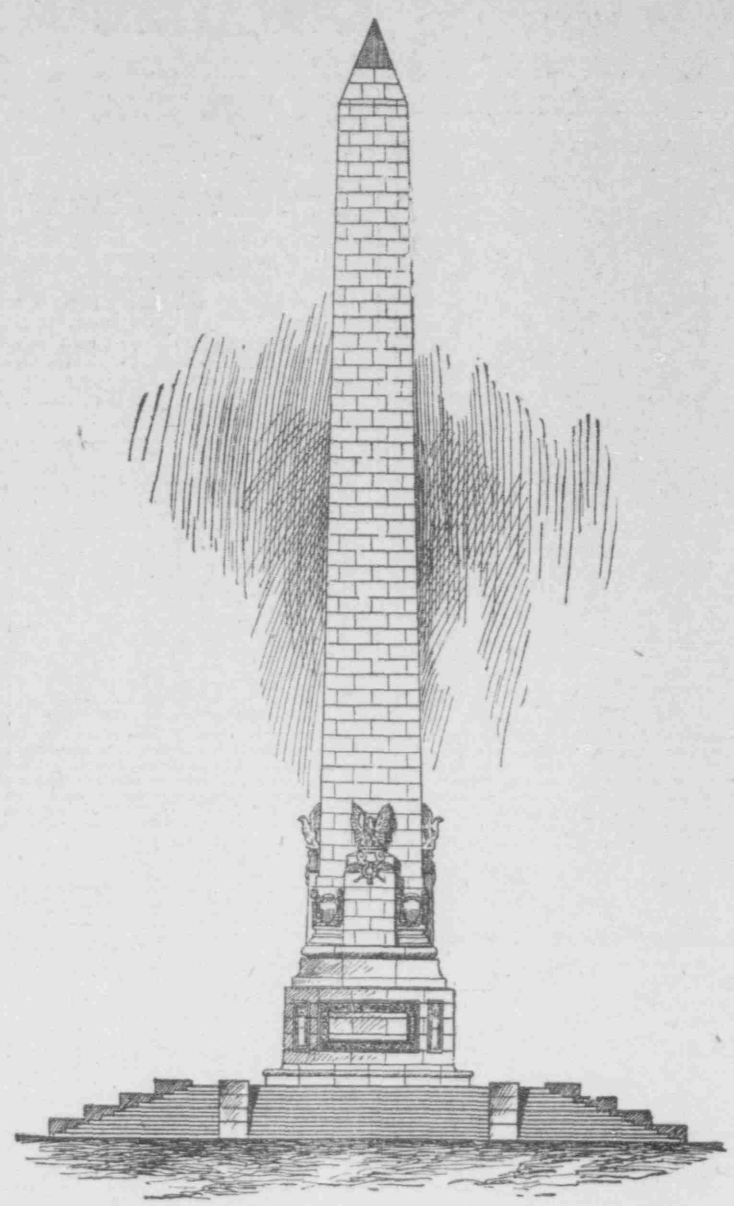

Foreign Bank Conditions Better.

Improved conditions are also exhibited by the Bank of France and the German Reichsbank. No doubt one of the matters that made for discouragement in Wall Street in the last few days was the fact that the foreign markets did not exhibit more exhilaration than they did under the reduction of the English bank rate. The price of consols and of other investment stocks in London weakened after the announcement was made, though it was said that one particular reason for the fall was the imminence of a large new loan offering by the London County Council. The local bond market, too, during the week did not display quite as much strength as it did last week. A good demand was still reported among the leading bond houses for the recent railway short-term note issues, but not quite as high prices were bid for these notes as there recently were. Exaggerated reports of the high price that the Erie Railroad Company had been forced to pay for its recent accommodation continued somewhat to the depressed feeling that was manifesting itself in the market. It was believed that railway "new" borrowing was over for the time being, there was yet a feeling that the renewal by these railway companies during the year of various short-term issues, and the resulting increase in the demand for money at recurring periods would tend to exercise an adverse influence upon the market for listed railway bonds.

Uncertainty as to Money Market.

Aside from the general and instinctive movement in the direction of realizing sales which obviously was the chief influence in producing the week's decline, one matter that hurt the market more or less was the prevalence of a species of vague doubt as to whether the current ease in the money market was likely to be permanent. A good deal of difference of opinion was developed on the point. Some of our best bankers maintained that the broad tendency of money rates here was toward a lower level, and they predicted that a 5 per cent. rate for time-money for all the longer periods would soon represent the high price that any lender could get for funds. They pointed to the evident fact that the rate for the first time really in the history of the country the merchants of the country were to be given the use of all of their own money. It was maintained in all other quarters, however, that the ease in the money market was to a certain extent illusory, that it was to a certain extent only reflected the lack of demand for funds of this class from Wall Street, and that there were bids in plenty from corporations at the national banks which, if they were supplied, would force money rates once more to the figures seen a few weeks ago; and it was declared that the reason why the banks did not lend money on the terms that were offered was that they were highly desirous, for the time being, of discouraging an overextension of business operations. Some emphasis was lent to this by the publication of the general national bank

JAMESTOWN MONUMENT.

Shaft now in course of erection to commemorate landing of first English settlers

The monument to commemorate the landing of the first English settlers is now approaching completion on Jamestown Island, Va. It is being built by the Norcross Brothers Co., which has offices in Washington, and the work is directly in charge of Mr. James J. Clifford. The exterior is of Massena New Hampshire granite, backed up to be of concrete, marble, and granite. The corner stone will be laid on May 13 with appropriate ceremonies. Under the terms of the contract the work was to be completed within three months. The Treasury Department has supervision over it. The walks and landscape embellishment immediately about the monument are in charge of Messrs. J. H. Small & Sons, of Washington. The accompanying picture gives a good idea of the monument as it will appear when finished.

The fact is not understood by the public generally that the forthcoming Jamestown Exposition is not to be held at Jamestown proper—the site of this monument. The exposition grounds are nine miles from Norfolk, and directly across the bay from Old Point Comfort. Jamestown Island, the first English settlement in America, 1607, is some distance away, and is reached by a journey to Williamsburg, Va. The distance from Old Point Comfort to Williamsburg is thirty-five miles, from Norfolk twenty-seven miles, from Hampton thirty-two miles, and from Norfolk thirty-nine miles and Jamestown is seven miles from Williamsburg.

An automobile road is now in course of construction from Williamsburg to Jamestown, and this drive will be a pleasing feature to those who are seeking out the historical places of interest. The tower of the old church at Jamestown is perhaps the most historical relic in America. Recent excavations made by the Antiquarian Society of Virginia have brought returns as of date of March 22, showing that bank loans were still large as compared with the supply of bank cash. There will be no such extent in the coming month a demand for money for agricultural purposes in the West and South, and no one seems to have any definite idea as to how great this demand will be, that is to say, as to how much money will be drawn from Eastern institutions for these purposes; but there are some distinct signs that not as much money will be taken as in former years.

OPINIONS ON THE NEW YORK MARKET

From The Washington Herald of Yesterday.

Benjamin Woodruff, of Post & Flagg—
"The market was discouraging to the bulls, prices being weak all the morning, and the fractional rally toward the end being nothing more than the closing of short contracts. Uncertainty over the crops, as well as the attitude of the administration in Washington, cause people to hesitate in making fresh commitments in the market. While I do not feel very bullish on the market for the long pull, I think that prices should rally from this level, as in the last few days they have declined from 5 to 10 points. This drop has been caused principally, I think, by short selling and belated liquidation. The short interest is undoubtedly large, and has made a great deal of money in the past, and, while the smaller shorts are run to cover from time to time, I believe the larger bears avail themselves of the opportunity to put out fresh lines on all strong spots. The bank statement, contrary to expectation, was poor one, and on its appearance the market became weaker. I think that Southern Pacific and Atchafalpa, among the railroads, are attractive purchases, and among the industrial, Copper and Steel preferred also look attractive, although the former is subject to wild fluctuations, for, even with the much-reduced price for copper metal, Amalgamated should have no difficulty in maintaining its present dividends."

G. Bowie Chipman, of E. R. Chapman & Co.—
"The market opened lower and promptly gave signs of renewed pressure, scattered liquidation, and more energetic short selling. During the entire session the market declined rapidly, bringing the leaders to a lower level than at any time for some days. A slight rally took place in the last ten minutes of yesterday's session. During the last hour of yesterday's session some buying took place, the character of which would lead to improvement, even if temporary. In today's session this was absent, and it is again evident that the proper parties are not extending support. The bank statement is taken as a bearish, as the loan item showed a large increase, which, however, must be put down to something other than stock speculation. I am still of the same opinion of the last few days, that is, that while to light many interesting treasures that have been buried for a century or more. Visitors to the Jamestown Exposition are strongly urged not to overlook this historic spot. It is well worth the time and money that will be required to see it. As the Bartholdi met every incoming ferryboat, each bringing a large party of devotees of the green cloth, it is estimated that 200 or 400 people visited the ark in the course of the afternoon and evening. While Chief Goods was near the embarkation point at the foot of King street he kept account of the size of the crowds and also kept a lookout for any Alexandrians bound for the houseboat, but the local patronage of the resort seemed to be exceedingly slim to-day.

No Action Against "Ark."

While the Alexandria police department, it is said, received no information to-day as to whether any movements were made by the sheriff of Prince George County in connection with the affair, it is presumed in this city that the houseboat enterprise was not openly proceeded against.

As stated in The Washington Herald, Mayor Paff has made complaint to Gov. Warfield, asking that measures be taken to break up the nuisance, and has been informed that the matter has been referred to the sheriff of Prince George County. The sheriff of Prince George County, it is said, has been informed that the matter has been referred to the sheriff of Prince George County.

There are but two families on Jamestown Island. The little post-office has recently been fairly deluged with mail intended for the Jamestown Exposition, but misdirected to Jamestown, Va. This is shown the mistaken idea prevailing all over the country that the exposition is to be held on the site of the first landing of the English settlers.

The market is in a technical position to have a good rally, it falls to give any evidence of support to that end and is apparently being left in a condition to produce still lower prices."

J. B. Weed, of Dick Brothers & Co.—
"The opening market was irregular and generally lower. Traders were bearish, and, in the absence of support, made successful drives against such stocks as Union Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated, and Smelters. The bank statement, which shows a surprising increase in the loan account, made a disappointing showing, and the market again reacted sharply with traders hammering stocks all around the room. In the last few minutes there was a slight rally which brought most issues fractionally above their low prices. I do not look for much further decline in prices, in the absence of liquidation, which, by the way, has not been apparent this week. The bulk of the selling seems to be for the short account."

S. H. Agnew, of Henry Clews & Co.—
"The bears had another inning to-day, starting in the morning and continuing throughout the first hour and a half, and helped along by a bad bank statement. There is continued uneasiness in the copper metal market. There can be no real improvement in the stock market until it is definitely settled that there is not to be a bad break in the copper metal quotations. Producers of the metal still contend that the demand exceeds the supply. The truth or falsity of this statement should be determined in the near future, and upon it will depend to a considerable extent the course of the stock market. A material cut in the price of copper metal would naturally lead to the belief that other metals were to suffer, which would be the first real sign of a flattening in general trade. The bank statement was a great disappointment, and was the signal for a general onslaught on the whole lot. Prices began to move, and continued to sag until the close of the session. My opinion to-day is that on any sharp rally stocks are a sale. The tendency is toward a lower range of prices."

WASHINGTON HERALD BUREAU.
(Bell Telephone 113.)
Corner of Prince and Royal Streets.

Alexandria, Va., April 14.—Enjoying freedom from molestation, the usual Sunday crowds frequenting the alleged gambling resort anchored in the Potomac, near Jones Point, made trips to-day on the little steamer Bartholdi between Alexandria and the houseboat at short intervals throughout the afternoon. Owing to the impression here that the authorities of Prince George County, Md., would take some action to-day against the establishment, many citizens collected in groups on the river front to watch for developments. Chief Goods and Lieut. Smith, of the local police force, witnessed the departure and arrival of several boatloads of Washington "sports," but, in accordance with the position taken by Mayor Paff, that the local authorities have no jurisdiction in the matter, no action was taken here to interfere in any way with the movements of the crowds. The influx of visitors continued until a late hour. As the Bartholdi met every incoming ferryboat, each bringing a large party of devotees of the green cloth, it is estimated that 200 or 400 people visited the ark in the course of the afternoon and evening.

While Chief Goods was near the embarkation point at the foot of King street he kept account of the size of the crowds and also kept a lookout for any Alexandrians bound for the houseboat, but the local patronage of the resort seemed to be exceedingly slim to-day.

No Action Against "Ark."

Snowden Proposed for Mayor.

It is suggested by a citizen who has been mentioned as a probable candidate for mayor of this city that, as the Second, Third, and Fourth wards are represented in the names thus far spoken of in that connection, the list should be added to, so as to include a citizen of the First ward. He expressed the opinion that the next mayor should be chosen from the First ward, and proposed the name of President Hubert Snowden, of the common council. The others heretofore mentioned are Mayor Paff, former Mayor George L. Simpson, of the Third ward; Councilman Julian Y. White, of the Second ward, and Councilman Charles B. Marshall, of the Fourth ward.

The Citizens' Improvement Association of Jefferson district, Alexandria County, has appointed a committee, consisting of E. L. Kirkland, R. A. Wilkerson, and John H. It was found later that the telephone line had been put out of business. The house was extinguished and Mr. Greenwood heard his daughter fall to the floor. He hurried to her assistance, but she had been instantly killed.

CRIME IN ITALY DECREASING.

Statistics Show an Alarming Number of Persons Wounded.

Rome, April 14.—The latest criminal statistics of Italy reveal the fact that during the year 1906, 2,306 persons were murdered, and 33,768 wounded. The figures show a decrease from the preceding year in the number of killed, which is attributed to the progress of surgery, but there is an increase in the number of wounded. It is calculated that in a space of twenty-seven years 57,000 persons met violent deaths, and 2,000,000 have been wounded.

The statistics relate exclusively to crimes referred to the courts, and do not include wounds which healed within ten days, or cases which were hidden from the police. Crimes of blood were a decreasing tendency compared with the increase in population. The record for criminality is held by Sicily, where the proportion of murders reaches 43 to every 100,000. The proportion decreases in other provinces and falls to 25 for every 100,000 in Naples. It decreases considerably in Northern Italy where, at Bergamo, there is only one murder for every 100,000 persons.

JOHN JOY EDSON, President.

BROWNSVILLE'S "BIG STICK."

In Inland with Jewels and Will Be Presented to Roosevelt.

Galveston, April 14.—With a suggestion that he use it to make the Senate investigating committee give the Brownsville people a showing, President Roosevelt is to be presented with one of the most costly "big sticks" ever seen. The citizens of Brownsville feel deeply grateful to the President for having the courage of his conviction in expelling the negro soldiers from the army for their participation in the murderous raid made by members of the Twenty-fifth Infantry upon Brownsville on the night of August 13.

The "big stick" weighs nearly five pounds, and is in the form of a walking cane, made of Mexican coffeewood, taken from the former home of Gen. Sam Houston before he became president of the republic of Texas. The wood has been preserved in one family for half a century, and could not have been bought for a price owing to its historic value. The cane is hand-carved, and the delicate and intricate engraving of various State and national emblems represents six months' labor. Silver is used in the mounting, and jewels are inlaid about the handle. A special committee will be sent to Washington to present the token to the President.
